TRACE RYAN'S TRIPS BY MEANS OF LETTERS

Government Producer Letters Between John J. McNamara and President of Ironworkers' Union.
Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Frank M. Ryan's trips about the country, which the government charges were made partly in connection with explosions which he was president of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, were traced in letters produced at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial here today.
One letter, written by John J. McNamara to Ryan, referred to an advertisement offered for publication in the Ironworkers' union magazine. This advertisement announced a reward for information about the finding of dynamite on a job in Cleveland, in February, 1908.
McNamara wrote to Ryan that "to refuse the advertisement would make it appear as if the union was trying to shield somebody."

Completely Hypnotized.
The dentist had not advertised himself as a "painless dentist," says a writer in the Kansas City Times, but he pulled a patient's tooth so quickly and dexterously that the man said: "How do you manage to extract women's teeth without their screaming? You don't give gas always, or do you?"
"But my office," the dentist replied, "is, as you see, opposite a department store millinery display. When the women get absorbed in looking at hats they're insensible to pain."

LEASE FOR TARGET RANGE IS ARRANGED

Papers in the Deal Are Mailed; Covers 640 Acres in Dona Ana County, New Mexico.

The Little Things Are Often the Biggest Things in the Paper.

By W. C. Kenaga.
No item in an advertisement is so small that it is not read. Let a compositor make an error which happens to get by the proof-reader, and both the store and newspaper hear of it immediately. Particularly is this true when the mistake is in a selling price which appears absurdly low.
Lined up with the readers of advertisements you'll find those who so often say, "I never read the advertisement," all with copies of the newspaper in hand, ready and anxious to profit by the low price.
Sometimes a store tries out a newspaper by inserting a bargain in small type. A few weeks ago a department store, which on Thursday runs a page of "100 remarkable Friday bargains," tucked away in an inch space an offer of "10 bars of Fels Napha Soap for 35c." Did anyone overlook it? The store thinks not—men and women came early, kept coming all day until the soap was all gone. The store had publicly shaming with an enormous cash-saver.
